Hongkong, September 15th, 1883. SIMULTANEOUSLY with the publication of the to perform. accounts of the anti-foreign riot at Canton a correspondence which passed in April last between the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce and Admiral Willis has been placed before the public. The Committee of the troops Chamber wrote to the Admiral protesting against the insufficient protection afforded by the fleet under the Admiral's command to British commerce in these waters. The Admiral replies with rather scant courtesy, informing the Chamber that their statements are "at variance with actual facts," that it is his duty to give protection to British and received a salute of thirteen guns upon seem half inclined to try the issue! The sooner subjects, commerce, and possessions, and that he so disposes of the squadron under his the attainment of that object, or as may be ordered by Her Majesty's Government, and that he need not assure the Chamber of Commerce that he reciprocates their desire that he is fully alive to the important mercantile interests which are represented in Hongkong. With regard to the statement that the harbour has on more than one occasion been left without the presence of an effective vessel-of-war, which the Admiral says is untrue, it is possible some misunderstanding has been occasioned by the use of the word "effective." There are several vessels in reserve always lying here, but there can . be no doubt that the harbour has at times ; been left without the presence of a vessel ready at once to put to sea if called upon, It-would have been a serious thing if this had been the state of affairs when the riot at Canton occurred. The Admiral, however, seems to think that his discretion in the not to be questioned. We can only hope that his discretion will be confined within smaller limits in future, and that Her Majesty's Government will give such orders

The Hongkong Chamber of Commerce did well in making the representation they did with regard to the injudicious disposition of the vessels composing the squadron, and it would be advisable that it should be followed up by further representations to a higher quarter, representations in which it would be well that the communities at the THE REPORTED CONCENTRATION OF various treaty ports should join. The Chamber of Commerce, in their letter to the Admiral, say :-- "The Committee feel it to be their duty to represent to Your Chinese waters.

A disturbance has arisen at one of the ports, and i longkong is left without the presence of an effective vessel of war. Canton, as it happens; is not very far away, and the two gunboats which have gone up could be speedily summoned back if the necessity arose, but the facts of the case are quite sufficient to show that the vessels left in the south are insufficient for the duties which in certain eventualities they may be called upon

CHIT-CHAT.

The riot of Monday last at Canton carries us such an incident might perhaps have been explainable by the lack of mutual confidence and the generally unsettled state of affairs that then prevailed. That such an outrage should be possible in these days, -when our political relations with China are presumed to have been established upon a satisfactory footing, and when the Government is supposed to have acquired a large accession of strength in its dealings, both with foreign nations and its own people.--is cerned. The local Anthorities cannot plead that they were taken quawares. For weeks the uneasy feeling of the populace has been patent to every one, and placard after placard has shown what their intentions were, when once execution. How comes it then that when the acq ired any strength, or that when the mob had showed what they were capable of, hours military body was moved to the resone? Even when the troops did arrive common report goes to prove that they had to claim the co-operation of a dozen or two foreigners from within the Shameen site before they succeeded in dispersing the rioters; and this is the Govern. ment, and these the soldiery, that flatter themselves they can cope with the French, and process might lead to the Averement, is said to have lately forwarded a reminded of the bitter lesson, which they seem was once captured and occupied as a consequence of outrages very much resembling the one we have now to deplore. In any case the local authorities should be called to account at once damage done. I observe that when the Chinese troops arrived, they could effect nothing until they exhibited the "Lingke" Flag, a sign that martial law was in force, whereupon the mon find in every direction for four of being fired upon. How much more practical a method this, of declaring civil law at an end, than our British process, under like circumstances, of reading the Riot Act! which of course only a few persons, in the immediate proximity of the Mayor or other civil authority could possibly be expected to hear.

The only weapons carried by the military mandarins who came in charge of the troops were, I have been informed, fans. The Chinese sons of Mars like to keep themselves cool. They can hardly be called fire-eaters.

Whilst on the subject of ordinances, let me refer to the " night pass system " and briefly ask how this works. Here again the answer is simple: badly to a dogree as regards the identity of the individual carrying the pass. It is a well known fact that night passes are borrowed all round the compass, and that in instance after instance the bearer of the pass is not the person named in it. It is not my intention to speak of the laxity with which the police have carried out the right of search, &c., nor of the difficulties that must necessarily beset them in astisfactorily deciding whather the bearer of the pass is the man it was granted to provided he gives the same name as that written. It is to the root of the evil I wish to strike and that is, that "Afong" and "Afat" of the passes are names whatever. They are simply the " Bobs" and "Toms" of European abbreviation. Neither the Servants' Registration Ordinance nor the " night pass system" asn over work until the individual can be clearly identified by the surname and by photograph, if this is impracticable, better have no pass system at all than be burdened with one which is defectively parried out. I must trust for the remedial-measures, however, before it is abolished.

Unless an Ambasender to the Chinese Court has plenary powers, negotiations with the mandaring are sickening to a degree.

I do not believe in a neutral zone as a settle ment of the Tonquin difficulty between France and China. I am confident that in the mountainous country bordering on Touquin quite a horde of brigands of the Black Flag type would find a refuge, and prove troublesome to both countries. Mr. Francis, instructed by Measrs, Dennys and Mossop for the plaintiff, Mr. Wise, instructed by Mesers. Brereton, Wotton, and Deacon, for The cass was before the court shout a month age, and had been adjourned for the consideration of a legal point. The claim was for money lent. by the plaintiff, a constable in the police force, o the defendant, who is a sergeant, and the legal point was as to whother the claim could be legally enforced, as such loans were contrary to the regulations of the Police Force, and in a case of the kind heard some years ago, Judge Ball ield that such a claim could not be enforced.

His Lordship, in giving judgment, said he was of oninion that plaintiff had made out his claim apart from this point, and but for that he would have been entitled to judgment. He had been looking the matter up, however, and he had come to a conclusion similar to teat of Judge Ball as to the power of enforcing such a claim, and judgment must be for the defendant. He intimated that if Mr. Francis desired to appeal, he would give every facility for his doing

At the conclusion of this case Mr. Dennys salled his Lordship's attention to another claim by the defendant against the plaintiff for a similar amount.

Mr. Wotton said this case was of a similar asture to the other, and he su gested that it should be allowed to stand over, in case it was decided to make an appeal in the first case. The case was a ljourned. PEAR BUX V. NAWAR, C50.

The plaintiff,'a Punjanbee gun lascar, said in answer to his Lordship that his claim was for $50 he had paid to the defendant as balf the price of a woman he had bargained to purchase of Nawab. The defendant had taken his $50 in advance, and then had refused to complete his bargain and hand over the woman. His Lordship asked the man whether he was not aware that the buying and selling of human beings in British possessions was quite illegal, The plaintiff said it was a custom here, and a great many people bought and sold women. His Lordship said he most decline to help any man engaged in transactions of this kind. The plaintiff must have known that buving and selling human beings was contrary to the laws of this colony.
